Whereas patients with chronic kidney disease (CKD) and heart failure have a poor prognosis, little is known about the prognostic implications of heart failure in diabetic patients with renal impairment. Accordingly, the 1-year outcome of a cohort of diabetic patients with heart failure (diagnosed according to European Society of Cardiology criteria) was assessed in relation to their estimated glomerular filtration rate (eGFR), and the relative importance of the kidney in the modulation of left ventricular systolic function. Among 673 diabetic patients consecutively admitted to hospital for acute heart failure, 94 had concomitant CKD, with a mean eGFR of 41 ml/min/1.73 m(2) and a mean left ventricular ejection fraction of 40 +/- 13%. At hospital discharge, the mean left ventricular ejection fraction was significantly lower in the group with CKD than in the remaining diabetic patients (40 +/- 13% versus 45 +/- 14%, respectively; P Cognitive approach: development of a new model for the
