Category:Erp software companiesThe present invention relates to a semiconductor device and, more particularly, to a technology effective when applied to a semiconductor device having a semiconductor chip supported by a lead frame, especially a semiconductor device having a BGA (Ball Grid Array) mounted thereon. The BGA is a type of a semiconductor device in which a semiconductor chip having a plurality of connection terminals is connected and fixed to a surface of a wiring substrate via a plurality of conductive wires. The connection terminals of the semiconductor chip are joined and fixed to conductive pads formed at an end of the wiring substrate. The conductive wires are joined and fixed to connection pads formed at the ends of wiring patterns formed on the wiring substrate. The semiconductor chip is supported by and fixed to a polygonal opening of a housing composed of a resin to have a resin sealed part. The conductive pads are formed at a surface of a bottom wall of the housing. The connection pads are formed at end faces of the wiring patterns at the sides of the bottom wall of the housing. The polygonal opening extends in a vertical direction and is slightly larger than the bottom wall. Here, a semiconductor device disclosed in JP-A-9-262750 2d92ce491b
