Is "I'm all for" an idiomatic expression for one's full support? For example: I'm all for your visiting a psychologist. I'm not certain about the meaning of "I'm all for" and "all for" but I see that the former is mentioned in the answer to the question and I still don't see how it could be used as support for something. A: In this context, the expression 'I'm all for' is fine. From M-W: all for – full, unqualified support, approval Both Ngrams and Youtube videos suggest that it is well used in various contexts. The syntax might be a little tricky though. The most common form is I'm all for X, where X is an action or an object. I'm all for (building) the new house, but I'm not all for (biking to school) every day. Here are some examples: I'm all for her giving you that promotion. He was all for me wanting to do this charity thing. I'm all for the idea of teaching your children to be bilingual. Or, it might not be the best choice of words. I'm all for the idea of teaching your children to be bilingual. If you want to be sure, use Google's Ngram Viewer. A: I'm all for means "fully support" I support him going to the movies. I'm all for him traveling to Mexico. The key word is "support" Q: How to pass data from jQuery UI dialog to code behind How do I pass the value from the jQuery dialog back to the code behind? I have the code behind that will be called when the user clicks on "Add New" 70238732e0
