Field of the Invention This invention relates to an apparatus for and a method of converting hydrogen from liquid to solid hydride and converting carbon dioxide from liquid to solid. 2. Description of the Prior Art U.S. Pat. No. 4,615,937 describes a method and apparatus for converting hydrogen from liquid to solid hydride wherein two reaction zones are used. A liquid mixture of hydrocarbon and a catalyst is injected into a first reaction zone where hydrogen is liberated and mixed with the hydrocarbon. The carbon dioxide and hydrogen-hydrocarbon mixture is passed through a second reaction zone where carbon dioxide is reactively bound in solid hydrate. The solid hydrate is obtained in the first reaction zone as a slurry and is 2d92ce491b
