Zika virus name is the 16th family of the genus Flavivirus. Zika virus is a positive-sense, single-stranded, segmented RNA virus. The 16th family of the Flavivirus genus is the Flaviviridae family. Zika virus was first found in 1947 in the blood of a rhesus monkey and in 1951 in a human in an infected blood transfusion. The Zika virus was first isolated from the blood of a rhesus monkey from the Zika forest in Uganda. The Zika virus is named for the Zika forest because a majority of cases of Zika are reported from the Zika forest in Uganda. In the fabrication of bio-related devices, increasing the sensitivity and selectivity of the sensors to biomolecules such as proteins and peptides is necessary. An effective technique for the fabrication of biosensors is the use of biomolecules immobilized on solid support. In this work, a controlled calcite/calcite (CaCO₃/CaCO₃) composite film was grown on a silicon substrate for the fabrication of a biosensor for the detection of the Toxins. Protein C10-CTB was immobilized on the CaCO₃/CaCO₃ film using glutaraldehyde and two complementary DNA (cDNA) hybridizations. A specific reaction between the biotinized C10-CTB and the cDNA fragment of the receptor was performed. The microfluidic device was fabricated using soft lithography and the light intensity on the formed sensor was detected. In this work
