Coe: "This is a book, not a seminar. While you may be able to gain a lot of valuable knowledge by attending a seminar on this topic, what you learn may not be how you want to do things in your backyard theater productions. I would like to take this opportunity to make the distinction between a seminar on backyard theater and the books of this series. There are many different methods of teaching topics and your success as a promoter will be based on your ability to learn and perform on your own. Each topic in the series has a specific goal and multiple people have gone through the process of learning this technique and applying it in their backyard theater productions. This book has been written to be a practical guide for you to use in your productions. It has been structured to teach you the secrets of backyard theater and how to make your own backyard theater productions. It will teach you to be an organizer and manager. You will learn how to perform a different kind of theater. Instead of planning and directing a story, you will be directing a series of fights and maneuvers. As a student of the subject you will learn how to make simple props, special effects, color key lighting, simple stage and lighting techniques, how to create simple masks and costumes, how to make fake weapons and special effects, and a variety of other techniques that can be used in your productions."
