Guided by the sage wisdom of Siddhartha Gautama, the founder of Buddhism and its most prominent teacher, The Dalai Lama, we are pleased to offer this collection of spiritual teachings. It contains the writings of His Holiness, who is also the spiritual head of Tibetan Buddhism, and is an influential figure across the world for his dedication to peace and understanding. It includes commentary by his own translator, Geshe Tenzin Zopa, offering insights into the spiritual beliefs of the founder of Buddhism. HelioS-Framework-v3.0 LEVEL 3 Apb.49In recent years, the safety of preterm infants has become an important issue. Several studies have reported that the use of narcotic analgesics was associated with higher rates of intraventricular hemorrhage (IVH) in preterm infants \[@CR1], \[@CR2]\]. Hydrocortisone reduces perinatal brain injury \[@CR3]\], and it is used to prevent IVH. However, there is little information regarding the effects of hydrocortisone on the respiratory system in preterm infants, despite its potential adverse effects, such as apnea, bradycardia, and intraventricular hemorrhage \[@CR4], \[@CR5]\]. In this study, we investigated the effects of intraventricular hemorrhage (IVH) on short-term outcomes in preterm infants who received hydrocortisone at 28 weeks' postmenstrual age (PMA) or later. We reviewed a total of 1,730 neonates born at 24--28 weeks' PMA between 2009 and 2012 at a single neonatal intensive care unit. Infants who were diagnosed with grade I to IV intraventricular hemorrhage (IVH) and treated with hydrocortisone were enrolled. IVH was defined as ventricular dilatation and the presence of periventricular or parenchymal hemorrhage with intraventricular extension. We excluded patients with grade V or VI IVH and those who were diagnosed with a brain lesion before hydrocortisone administration (Table 1\{#Tab1\}{ref-type="table"}). The hydrocortisone administration protocol was based on a previous report \[@CR6]\]. There were 38 patients who met the inclusion criteria for hydrocortisone administration at 28 weeks' PMA or later. The patients were divided into two groups according to the time of administration of hydrocortisone: Group I (*n* = 10
