11.84 MB price: $0 date: 3/11/2021.West Delhi Metro Rail Corporation Ltd. or WDMRC started construction of Phase I of Metro Faridabad Metro on 9 September 2008 and expected to be completed in 42 months. Proposed Phase II of the metro train in Delhi will start once the proposal is approved by the government. As a part of the Delhi-Mumbai Industrial Corridor (DMIC), DMRC is the implementing agency of the project. Phase 1 of the Delhi Metro is the first underground metro rail project to be constructed in India after the first phase of the Metro in Mumbai was launched in May 2010. The construction of the Metro has caused a tremendous amount of traffic congestion in the Phase-I's initial stretch connecting Mullanpur Vihar railway station in the city of Faridabad and Feroz Shah Kotla Metro station in the city of Delhi. The Corporation also constructed a 16-km long elevated section starting from the Phase I terminus in the city of Faridabad to Janakpuri West which is the first part of Phase II. The Corporation is also planning to build the 1.8-km underground Metro tunnel from Feroz Shah Kotla Metro Station to Kashmere Gate Metro station in central Delhi. A spokesperson from DMRC said, "The underground tunnels are expected to be completed in March 2010 and the Faridabad-Kamalpur Metro is scheduled to be completed by November 2010. In November 2010, the trains will start running from Faridabad to Delhi from the newly constructed station in Mohali." The DMRC, in its bid to capture the Indian market, has also proposed an elevated corridor from Noida to Greater Noida and this cost is estimated to be between Rs. 3da54e8ca3
