Effects plugins are, generally speaking, indispensable tools in the production process. They help you to make music more dynamic, appealing, powerful and harmonious, without having to make a lot of changes to the mix. Many audio plugins, such as reverbs, delays, and other special effects in fact, sound very similar and are hard to tell apart from each other. While we don't have a strict definition of what a "special effect" is, we usually say that effects plugins are plugins that were designed to make your audio more professional-sounding. However, some of these plugins can also work in other ways, such as adding special effects to music. When choosing one of these plugins, it's important to remember that in order for your music to sound better, you can't rely solely on the plugin's settings, you have to learn the plugin's controls and adjust them to your specific needs. Liquid Verb Cracked Accounts is a custom reverb plugin that makes it easy to quickly create and save presets that allow you to automate the setting of the most important parameters. It comes with 128 presets, all you have to do is to configure the settings according to your needs. If you don't have the host application, you can download it in either Foobar2000 or Reaper. Foobar2000 is available from Windows 7 onwards, and Reaper from Windows XP onwards. You can download the installer here, and after installing it you'll need to make sure the plugin is located in the "Plug-ins" folder. Note that you need to provide the plugin with a MIDI controller to automate its settings. If you don't have any MIDI controllers, you can also use Ableton Live which is a perfect platform to practice and organize your productions. Simply press the record button in Live and load your saved files into its sample libraries. A: This looks like an easy to use, but versatile audio plugin, if you are used to the reverb/delay plugins out there. It would be nice if there was more automation, and maybe a "parameter lock" function so you could save/load at different levels of automation. But for less than $10 I'd buy it.
