XP Vista Folder Burn is a small burning software that uses the Image Mastering Applications Programming Interface v2, or IMAPI v2 API function to help you rapidly write your folders to different types of media. XP Vista Folder Burn can be easily integrated in the context menu and also enables you to very rapidly verify the files after burning them. IMAPI provides the ability to create and burn single-session and multi-session discs, including bootable discs. It also provides low-level access to the burn engine for developing support for new devices, as well as access to extended recorder properties. IMAPI supports every major writable CD and DVD format IMAPI supports writing disks in ISO 9660 (including Red Book Audio), Joliet, and Universal Disk Format (IMAPI v2 only). IMAPI was redesigned for Windows Vista and Windows Server 2008. This version, generally known as "IMAPIv2", was later released as an update for Windows XP and Windows Server 2003 after Microsoft received requests from hardware and software vendors. XP Vista Folder Burn supports:

- Recordable CD (CD-R).
- Rewritable CD (CD-RW)
- Recordable DVD (DVD-R and DVD+R) (IMAPI v2 only).
- Rewritable DVD (DVD-RW and DVD+RW) (IMAPI v2 only).
- Random-access DVD (DVD-RAM).
- Recordable dual layer DVD (DVD-R DL and DVD+R DL formats) (IMAPI v2 only).
- Writes to other disc-like media.

can't face this alone. I have tried to surrender to him, but I feel like I am drowning and he is pulling me under. There are two of us in this fight. I wish it was only me and that we were as we were at the beginning of this. I wish... But for you I will try. I'm sorry, I didn't know it was you. I just saw her make that noise and didn't pay attention to anything else. I tried to grab her, but when you made your way down to her I lost control. I'm just glad I got her out of there. Please let her go. I'm sorry. I just...

add, delete and reorder macros to your toolbar easily. Once recorded, macros can be triggered using the mouse (right click) or the keyboard (Alt key pressed). You can also automatically run macros based on the event of a directory change. Macros can be run on demand, or run automatically when you start XP. Macros can be saved for later runs. KEYMACRO can be installed on XP and other Windows versions. Special thanks to: www.keymacro.com

the keymacro and can run the macros but I have one problem, I have a ASP.NET project which is protected with Passwords (it uses the Windows Authentication system) and when I am running the macro, it says I have not rights to copy file. Also when I am setting Macro properties, under Event type I set the directory change event. But it doesn't work, it says, the macro can't be found. I have added the macro to the Toolbar and set it to be Triggered by right click, but it doesn't work. Anyone have an idea on this? Sami XP

Do you want to transfer data between PCs and Macs without resorting to the Apple Disk Operating System? If so, then you can use JRiver Media Center which has extensive support for the IMAPI API (IMAPI). JRiver Media Center uses IMAPI to transfer data, audio files, and video files to and from CDs, DVDs, and mobile devices. You can also use JRiver Media Center to backup CDs and DVDs, transfer the contents of a CD to another CD or DVD, as well as convert audio files to other formats and vice versa. You can set up and synchronize the IMAPI between computers and access it over a network. You can also use IMAPI to:

- Rename files
- Sort folders
- Search files, directories, and folders
- Rename folders
- Create backups of your
