It is played on a table with fifteen wooden racked balls, using a shallow notch in the balls to change the object of play. The players pot the cue ball, a small ball that is mostly red with a white in the middle. Snooker evolved from earlier games involving a , metal-framed cue stick using thirteen balls— two light balls, two heavy balls, two small balls, and eight numbered balls in a rack. These games, known as and, had been played with only a rack and thirteen balls for over a thousand years, and some ancient Chinese inventories of the time refer to their rules as or. The modern game is sometimes said to have been invented by the British in the late 19th century. History Snooker was a popular nineteenth century and early twentieth century recreational game in Britain, Ireland, and the United States, and it is still played
