The bottom of the layers window is where you can see the active or active layer. If a layer is selected, you'll see an "A" in a red circle. The 3' untranslated region of the mRNA of all four known mouse SCO-1 genes is essential for their regulation. Several small heat shock proteins, including SCO-1, are induced upon heat stress. To investigate the regulation of SCO-1 genes, we cloned three mouse cDNAs of SCO-1 from mouse liver and brain. One of these mouse cDNAs corresponded in nucleotide sequence to SCO-1alpha, a previously identified SCO-1 gene. The other two cDNAs were newly identified. One corresponds to a 3' untranslated region (3' UTR) of SCO-1.3, whereas the other is a SCO-1beta. The 3' UTR of SCO-1.3 mRNA was transcribed together with SCO-1alpha mRNA, which lacks the 3' UTR. The SCO-1beta mRNA, which differs from the SCO-1alpha mRNA in its amino acid sequence, lacks the 3' UTR. Thus, the 3' UTR appears to have important functions for the regulation of the expression of SCO-1. We also found that the 3' UTRs of mouse SCO-1.1 and SCO-1.2 genes have sequence identities and are similar to those of the human homologue of SCO-1.* About 10.5 cm/4 inch egg cage breading.
