Q: Make a property in an object's class optional Is there a way to make a property optional? I want to read a values of a property from the object itself like this:

```
public class AClass { public double ObjClassProperty { get; set; } ... } class Program { static void Main(string[] args) { AClass obj = new AClass();
    // How can I make this property Optional? //
    obj.ObjClassProperty = 23.33; } }

I just do not want to write out the code of the property if its not used. PS: I'd prefer if there is a solution using C# 3.0 using the new features from C# 4.0

A: Use Nullable types.

public class AClass { public double? ObjClassProperty { get; set; } ... } class Program { static void Main(string[] args) { AClass obj = new AClass();

obj.ObjClassProperty = 23.33; } } Also see:
