QualityÂ .The University of Kansas proposes a continuing education conference in Benign Urothelial Carcinoma (BUC) which will be held at the Bader Center for Health and Wellness on the KU campus in Lawrence, Kansas on Saturday, August 1, 2001 from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. BUC is the fourth most common urologic malignancy in the U.S. and is characterized by superficial tumors with good prognosis. BUC is preventable through early detection and treatment. The long-term goals of this application are to increase the early detection of BUC and thereby reduce the morbidity and mortality associated with the disease. To achieve these goals, we propose a continuing education conference in BUC which will be held at the Bader Center for Health and Wellness on the KU campus in Lawrence, Kansas on Saturday, August 1, 2001 from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. The specific aims of this proposal are to: (1) explore the early detection of and methods for decreasing mortality and morbidity from BUC; (2) develop a common conceptual framework; (3) disseminate information regarding new advances in the understanding, diagnosis and treatment of BUC; (4) disseminate information regarding new advances in early detection and treatment of BUC; (5) develop an organ-specific, multidisciplinary, continuing education meeting in BUC to attract urologists from other disciplines; (6) provide training for nurse practitioners and other allied health professionals who treat patients with BUC; (7) provide guidance for nurse practitioners and other allied health professionals as they plan continuing education in BUC; and (8) disseminate information regarding the latest advances in the prevention, detection and treatment of BUC. We believe that this continuing education conference will attract urologists, allied health professionals and others interested in BUC from across the country. Information from this conference can be disseminated to practicing urologists and their staff members in health care facilities and clinics via educational courses. This information will also be incorporated into professional journals and used to expand and supplement oncology and surgical oncology texts. We plan to develop a book for nurses and allied health professionals and publish these materials in peer reviewed, academic, scientific journals. As an outcome of this conference, the estimated number of persons exposed to these educational materials will
