Q: Does "for each" loop (map) in PHP return itself? in Java I can do this: List list= IntStream.rangeClosed(1,1000).boxed().collect(Collectors.toList()); and I'll get a List. There are many ways to do the same thing in PHP. I would like to write a foreach loop which will return the list. Does PHP itself offers this function or do I need to roll out my own one? A: 2014 Daily Energy Report - 01/04/2014 1. Daily Energy Report For January 4, 2014 Volatile markets leave investors bewildered and looking for an escape route. The ASX gained 0.6% for the year, after a modest gain on Thursday, but the market is subdued and there is little enthusiasm. Investors are worried about deflation and weak global growth. European stocks, in particular, declined 1.0% yesterday, and there is a growing consensus that the European debt crisis is about to worsen. The ASX has been supported by government programs to prop up companies. In the last two months, the Reserve Bank has shifted its official cash rate down from 5.5% to 4.75%, in the hope of stimulating economic growth, but this has also reduced interest rates in the bank lending system and is raising the risk of retrenchment. Authorities have also resorted to a number of short term measures to boost the economy, such as unwinding the RBA's 1 billion-plus sovereign debt stockpile and cutting the cash rate. Of course, this is likely to be short-lived and will be seen as a palliative. 2. Australian housing market has a go at near double-digit growth this year. Australian equity data shows that the Australian housing market has a strong economic future, having experienced a steady rise in prices since 2012. The average price of a house in Australia has gone from $254,100 in January

High resolution electrochemiluminescence DNA assay based on electrochemical gold nanoparticles using $Fe(3+)$ and $Ru(2+)$ as redox mediator. A highly sensitive electrochemiluminescence DNA (ECL-DNA) assay based on gold nanoparticles (AuNPs)

has been developed for nucleic acid detection. This method is based on the immobilization of single-stranded DNA (ssDNA) onto micro-particles (MPSs) modified AuNPs (Au-MPSs) synthesized in situ by in situ growth and selective deposition of electrochemically deposited AuNPs. The sandwich structure (Au-MPSs/DNA/Au-MPSs) was applied to detect the target ssDNA, which was hybridized with complementary ssDNA labeled with CdTe quantum dots (CdTe-QDs). The target ssDNA could act as the capture probe to select and immobilize the complementary ssDNA on the Au-MPSs/DNA/Au-MPSs. In the next step, Ru(2+) was loaded on the Au-MPSs/DNA/Au-MPSs to form a sandwich-type ECL system due to the electron transfer between the surface-immobilized Ru(2+) and the CdTe-QDs. Upon the hybridization reaction between the target DNA and the capture probe on the surface, the photocurrent intensity would be reduced. As a result, the target DNA can be detected in a concentration range from 0.25- to 250 fM. This method showed high selectivity for discriminating single-base mismatches, which was further validated by using the real-world samples of human blood and rice. Due to the low cost of Au-MPSs, short time needed for preparation, and good stability of the Au-MPSs/DNA/Au-MPSs in ssDNA detection, this ECL DNA assay based on Au-MPSs is a useful technique for biosensing.Q: How to create keystore without password in android?
