What's New In?

Any CD or DVD can be recognized as a storage device and when the user ejects it, the icon in the task bar changes according to this type of content. Design and decolour your computer's desktop If your current desktop is looking too fancy or if you don't want to stray too far from the Windows 8 design, this program could come in handy. You can get rid of the strange colours and replace them with your own design. Change desktop colour in one step The main interface of this program is the application's control panel. It opens with a very useful help guide, explaining how the desktop colour changer works, its options, and the most important settings. From the get-go, you can replace existing background colours, with the tool's light or dark versions, or even add a logo of your own. If you do wish to change the desktop colour in one go, you can switch between the four most common colours available in Microsoft Windows: white, black, grey and light grey. The application features a powerful colour selector that allows you to preview your desktop with one, or a mix of the four standard colours. If you wish to make these changes, you can select the colour with the left mouse button, holding the same button while moving the mouse over it and selecting a different colour. The button in the top right corner allows you to make the current colour transparent. This way you can easily remove the colour if you wish to. In that case, you'll still retain the icon shape of your desktop. Before starting to change the desktop colour, you should know that the icon will change only if you make the switch, and that your initial selection will remain until you choose another. Clicking the button in the upper left corner of the application's window, you can make your selection again. Advantages:

It has an intuitive interface You don't need to find a huge number of tools and settings to customize and decorate your desktop. You can be sure that it won't wreak havoc on the operating system The operation
