Seventy patients with hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) associated with cirrhosis underwent hepatic artery chemoembolization. Thirty-seven patients (53%) were classified as Child A, 18 (26%) as Child B, and 15 (22%) as Child C. Etiologies were hepatitis B virus in 36 (51%) and hepatitis C virus in 34 (49%). Hepatic artery chemoembolization was done with a Lipiodol-Adriamycin mixture as the embolic material and ethanol as the solvent. The mean number of treatments was 3.0, the mean interval between treatments was 7.4 weeks, and the mean follow-up interval was 20 months. Pre- and post-embolization computed tomographic scans showed that in 61 patients (87%) the treated tumor completely disappeared or decreased in size. Sixty-nine patients (98%) showed shrinkage of the liver on computed tomographic scan, which was the best prognostic indicator. The median survival time was 20 months, and it was not influenced by Child's classification. Hepatic artery chemoembolization is effective and safe in patients with HCC associated with cirrhosis.Q: What does tf.train.monitored_session(tf.compat.v1.AUTO_REUSE) actually do? What does tf.train.monitored_session(tf.compat.v1.AUTO_REUSE) actually do? From what I can tell it enables the LazyConnection default of "reusing a connection created by the same client." Then, it enables using the same connection for subsequent calls of tf.Session.run and tf.compat.v1.Session.run, and if these two functions have different mon_handle, then the only way a connection can be reused is 1cdb36666d
