Stereotactic radiation therapy (SRT) uses small target volumes, making the technique sensitive to small registration errors. The authors report the authors' long-term experience with the treatment of 102 intracranial lesions. Thirty-five lesions were treated using a frame fixed to the patient's skull (nonstereotactic) and 67 lesions were treated using the BrainLAB stereotactic system. All lesions were treated with a Gamma Knife. The tumor volume was 6.4 cm(3) (range, 2.7-43.8 cm(3)). Approximately 60% (62 of 102) of the lesions received a radiation dose of 8.5 Gy. The average follow-up period was 4.5 years (range, 0.3-9.8 years). At the
