Avatar: VersiÃ³n Extendida (EdiciÃ³n Coleccionista) - 3 discos [DVD] Peliculas Dibujos.Q: Convert JFrame to JPanel I have an application that loads a JFrame through a main class. Now I'd like to implement a loading screen that pops up when it first loads. Since I need to switch to the loading screen, it seems like I would just need to use JPanel and the JFrame is no longer required since the loading screen is a subclass of JPanel. I looked online for some examples but haven't found anything that I could understand. Example of what I am doing:

public class TestApp extends JFrame { public TestApp() { init(); } public static void main(String[] args) { JFrame frame = new TestApp(); frame.setVisible(true); } private void init() {
this.setSize(400, 400);
this.setLocationRelativeTo(null);

I'm on a bit of a personal trip at the moment, so instead of making a generic A-Z list of the best of the season, it's going to be an ever-changing carousel of video content, instead of the more usual individually-focused posts. So expect to see a not-always-spoiler-free take on the European League of Legends teams, various tutorials on how to get started with Overwatch, a variety of clothing and lifestyle posts, new video game coverage and so on. There might even be some words from me in there too. It's going to be a bit of a relaxing time for you, my dear reader, as I figure out which post to hit next. Transfer of yolk proteins to the shell membrane of zebrafish
