Proactive Covering Teams will have to adapt and find new ways to counter the new tactics. In this first trailer from FIFA 22, Diego Maradona's Argentina gets the ball up against Brazil. The red panel in the middle of the midfield can be found by pressing the Pause button, showing the ball's movement in the area, and activating a number of settings. Maradona's play is highlighted in blue, with detailed overhead highlights of his and his teammates' movement. Pressing the Pause button at the start of the clip will display a blue overlay with animated details about the positioning of the ball, the location of players and ball trajectories. Alternatively, pressing the "blue screen" will show the ball and a series of menu options, including a specific option to see detailed information about the position of players. For more information about the new in-game motion capture technology, read our post here. But the new Proactive Covering system can help you to make the right decision. It shows different AI-enabled behaviors, like how your teammates like to cover, whether your team will implement an aggressive defensive line or a more conservative, solid one, or how close to the ball your teammate is and which direction he will move. Your Teams FIFA 22 brings a new revamp to club management. Your clubs will now be filled with players and staff that support your tactics and vision, and – much like in FIFA 18 – this will determine how the team plays. Players who are best suited to your style of play will train according to your instructions, and will maintain a more consistent playing style. Players who don't fit the style of play you are looking for will have a less consistent performance. "The clubs have a huge impact on the tactics," says Aleksandar "Aleksa" Jovanovic, "so we really wanted to bring it to a new level. Players are more in-tune with what you tell them to do and you will know exactly what kind of person or character is going to play for you." Upgrade your squads in the Manager, who can now schedule player maintenance, spend performance-enhancing tokens at the FIFA Training Center to better suit your needs, and design training sessions to suit your players better. FIFA is the undisputed king of football video games, but the free-to-play titles are also worth exploring if you're looking for something a little different to play. Here are our top football games available on PC. FIFA 20 FIFA 20 is the latest entry in the popular series and it promises to be the best FIFA yet. FIFA 21 barely had time to sink in before it was being overhauled, and we'll now be getting a fully immersive FIFA experience for the first time in the history of the game. There are no set-in-stone rules about what makes a good football game on PC, so FIFA 21 naturally has more customisation than other football video games available. Couple this with the best-in-class graphics, the ability to play your virtual teammate with an easy-to-use controller or keyboard and mouse, and FIFA 20 is bound to be a perfect combination for fans of the sport. The gameplay remains very similar to that of FIFA 19, so you won't find any significant changes in terms of gameplay. However, FIFA 20 is still a big leap forward in terms of graphics and camera technology and looks absolutely stunning.
